ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to thank the Lord Almighty for the opportunity and gift of life He gave me from the onset until the completion of this study. Thank you Lord for the protection.

My sincere thanks to my supervisor Prof KK Ayisi for his active support in times of need during my research study. Thanks for sharing your knowledge and talent with me, this study is successful because of you. I really appreciate your efforts and may the Lord Almighty be with you and give you strength all the time so that you can reach out to more people in future.

I am grateful to the University experimental farm manager Mr Dany Lutig and Mr Mojapelo for providing land to carry out experiments, I hope the study will benefit you in some ways.

I also extend my gratitude to the National Research Foundation (NRF) for the financial support during this study.

My special thanks to my husband Noko Jones Ramoroka for his encouraging words and you really played an important role my dear. You are really a loving and caring husband and I appreciate the extended support you gave me during the study and I know that will not be the end. Special words of appreciation to my children for the time they gave me to complete this study, I will make it up to you all, you are really sweet and understanding. To my parents, special thanks to you, you really played your full role with dignity and respect. Thanks for your love, patience and support and I hope the treatment you gave me will be extended to my younger sister and brothers.

I owe my special thanks to my friends, the plant production team for technically assisting with data collection and not forgetting the late Masefako Maria Madia who played an important part in my life among the friends during my period of study from first level until my masters level when she got sick. Sister, the support and motherly advices you gave me are really appreciated, may your soul rest in peace.

DEDICATION

This study is dedicated to my husband, daughters (Phuti, Makwena & Sekgametse), son (Lesetsa) and my parents who played an important role for me to complete. Thank you for being so understanding. I hope you will love it.
